Explosion

Touchdown! Charlie Baxter scores a touchdown and beats Ty Wenthold in paper football.

We released most of our energy through athletics. There were football games, tennis matches, basketball games, and many other events.

We took our frustrations out on balls, rackets, bats, gloves, and sometimes even each other. Some of the best times we had were out on the field, the court, and the track.

Although some of us were only spectators, we were as involved in the game as the players. Watching them play became an important part of our schedule.

Athletics were an important part of us. We wanted everyone to know we were the best we could be.

Shape up. Some athletes jog through the halls to get into shape.

ETIC

Uh-Oh! Chaun Motheral didn't know that his friends replaced his ball with an exploding golf ball.

ACTI

Hula hula. Chrissy White and Lesli Leggett show the right way to go Hawaiian.

Explosion

If there was one thing we were it was active. We always had something to do, somewhere to be. There were activities going on constantly. Some of us wanted to be a part of all of them, while others settled for just a few. Whatever our choices, we always kept busy.

Our social life was a big part of us. We felt as though we needed to be everywhere, at every game, every meeting, a part of every group. Sometimes our load got too heavy; eventually we had to slow down, at least for a while; but usually, in a week we were back at it going full force again.

We really loved being busy. It taught us how to work and get along with each other, how to organize and how to work together as a group.

Is it worth it? As Rance Foster and Stacy Darnell help Brian Blakely to the clinic after giving blood, they all wonder if it was worth the trouble.

Listen up. StuCo President, John Sargent, informs the student body of an upcoming activity.

Roll-em. Raticka Crutchfield races to the finish line during the powder puff olympics.

Spring fever. Yumiko Hurst, Mary Robinson, Bobby Hill, Trina Kuepker, Misty Boyd, Randy Neugebauer, Rhonda Arnold, and Kevin Smith spend a spring day having fun together.

CLASS

Not again. Steve McCartney realizes he'll have to learn to stack his books the right way.

Piggin' out. David Robinson eats his morning breakfast in his first hour.

What a joke. Carl Dowdy and Marc Scott can't believe that Billy Shipp and Race McDoulette are really serious.

Brain power. Marc Cutler crams for his final tests so that he can pass his junior year.

ROOM

Explosion

Sometimes it really did seem as though we spent half our lives in class. We lived from textbook to textbook, test to test, continually working.

Well we didn't work all the time. Often we could walk into a class and see some of us eating, talking, or even sleeping.

Our grades were important to most of us. It was hard to get everything done, but we usually found a way to do it. We really did spend half our lives in class but when it comes down to it, it was worth it.

Explosion

We really had some great times during the year. We worked hard, studied hard, and played hard. We took the good times with the bad, and we seemed to come out more mature and more sure of ourselves as individuals than ever before.

We laughed, cried, yelled, whispered, talked and listened. Everyday was different with new obstacles to get around and a different bridge to cross.

We seemed to never slow down, and when we did, we didn't know what to do.

It was a combination of all these things and more which caused our General Explosion to occur in 1986.

Chug-a-lug. Chrissy White, Leali Leggett, Sereta Robinson and Shelly Temuley down a coke in the powder puff olympics.

Karate. Rickey Myskey practices his karate on Pat Leonard's head. Boom! Ron Cable, Stan Prokarym and Ted Huskinson try firing the General cannon.

PEOPLE

Explosion

People were important to us. Without people our lives would have been worth nothing. We had administrators who kept us in line, making sure we kept out of trouble. Our teachers helped us learn. They taught us how to be a better person. The most important people to us were our friends. They were the ones we counted on and the ones who counted on us. Our lives were filled with people. They made high school what it was.

"Even though we don't see him every day, we know he's our friend."

Academic excellence is top priority

Dr. James Robinson had a great deal to do with the new programs and activities that were placed in our school this past year. Many of the old programs were improved, and newer ones were still in the experimental stage.

Dr. Robinson said, "US Grant High School is characterized by a renewed spirit of ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE." New programs and activities have been instituted to provide a basis and catalyst to this emphasis. In addition to the basic high school curriculum, the inclusion of advanced placement classes, a college-prep program, and a test awareness program have added a new dimension to the pursuit of academic excellence.

"A new spirit of academic achievement and competition has emerged in the student body and faculty over the year. This spirit is evident by the school's overall improvement in the California Achievement Test scores, and the increased student participation in local, state, and national academic competition. It is my feeling that the school's goals and mission were attained as the faculty,

Dr. Robinson met challenges that were tough for him to conquer, just as we met challenges that were tough for us. Through his experience and excellent abilities he succeeded.

Dr. Robinson has been a friend to many students on a one-to-one basis. The feeling of friendship can never be replaced. Dr. Robinson has given a great deal of his time and effort to assure students that he is more than just a principal, he is their friend.

Improvement. Dr. James Robinson and his secretary Mrs. Ruby Lee often work on the improvements that Dr. Robinson has made over the years.

"It's good to have the support that Dr. Robinson always provides for our activities."

Brian Blakley

Big Supporters. Dr. James Robinson, Mr. Cal Holloway and Mr. Paul Simmons are big supporters at the football games.

Yell Leaders. Dr. James Robinson talks to Julie Bell, Yuniko Hurst, Carlos Martin, Traci Canon and Chrissy White about the Ice Cream social.

Yuck! Vice Principals are just a necessary evil.

Kim Dowdy

Helping out. Mrs. Laura Allen helps Cris Reynolds and Steve Copus work out their schedule

Attention. Mr. Alfa Moulton spends part of the morning giving announcements

Good going. Mrs. Laura Allen congratulates Billie Anderson on finally finishing her schedule.

One more time. Mr. Paul Simmons has Matt Wood and Lance Ross call home one more time to get out of trouble.

Discipline

They line us up and keep order

Our assistant principals played a major role in our high school education. Without their guidance and discipline where would we be? At times we became annoyed and frustrated with the rules and regulations they enforced.

Whether we liked it or not the DNA got a lot of us caught. "The DNA gave the students the opportunity to discuss problem situations with their principal," said Mr. Alpha Mouton.

Herding them in. Mr. Alfa Mouton directs the freshman students to the first point of enrollment.

Principals were not designed with the sole purpose to deal with us only when we were in trouble. Believe it or not, a lot went on behind the scenes. They worked very hard to assure that our education came first. "The needs of the students are first and foremost," stated Mrs. Laura Allen.

Where were our principals when we got into trouble? We all knew that they were right there. They didn't always condemn us, but they made sure that we were justly punished. Even though we thought they were being unfair at times, we realized deep down they were only doing their job, and doing it for our own good.

Our principals were our friends and kept just as active as we did throughout the year. They were always at the sports events cheering and supporting the team. They also helped by chaperoning at school events. They spent a lot of their time working and helping and keeping us in line.

Counselors, board make it all happen

The people who made it all so easy were our counselors. Without them, our school would have been shambles. They worked hard this year preparing schedules for each enrolled student.

"Counselors are part of an educational team which is responsible for the careers, and the educational, social and emotional development of the students. Each counselor works closely with administration, teachers and other support personnel in an effort to meet the needs of all students. Counselors are also charged with the responsibility of providing students with the information they might need to ensure their personal growth and development," commented Mr. John Moham.

Three musketeers. Mr. John Moham, Mrs. Harriet Pulley, and Mrs. Thelma Parks work together to make the school year a success.

We turned to our counselors for guidance in planning our futures. They influenced us in our decisions, trying to guide us in the direction which would be best for us. "I just want you to take classes that will help you once you get to college," said Mrs. Thelma Parks, about counseling with students.

College will play an important part in many of our lives. Our counselors helped by advising us in this area. They showed us how to fill out applications and showed us what each college had to offer. Our counselors worked hard to make our years at Grant High School the most beneficial years of our lives.

Our lives are changing for real

High school played a major role in our lives. It showed us the good things we can get out of life. It gave us a sense of independence. We had responsibilities that we had never had before. We became involved with social activities and in our school as a whole. Yet even with all of this we were sheltered from the "real world." Now our high school days are coming to a close, and the life ahead is still a mystery to many of us. What will our lives be after it's all said and done?

Growing up is hard to do

As we grew up, more responsibilities were put upon us by various people. Some of us were paying for cars, while some of us were saving to pay for college. There were other kinds of responsibilities like being at a certain place when we promised we would do something to help someone else. No matter what we were responsible for it helped us to grow up.

"The biggest responsibility I had in high school was making sure I had enough money to pay my car insurance."

We were so stupid it's unreal

When we look back over the years we have spent at Grant, we realize just how much we have changed. We have grown up and become more mature. We look back and realize that some of the things we may have done as underclassmen were very childish, and we're very glad that we've grown out of most of those things, because they were embarrassing to us.

We can't wait to get on with it

Our senior year, we were excited about graduation. We couldn't wait to graduate and get on with our lives. We all felt as if we were finally going to be accepted as adults, and for that, we couldn't wait.

Although the excitement was there, so was the sorrow. We would be leaving people we had grown up with; we were all going our separate ways.

"I was so glad to be graduating, but the thought of never seeing some of the faces I had become used to everyday was strange."

Stan Prokarym

"Getting out on my own seems exciting, but scary too. It will feel strange not going to high school everyday. Now I'll have responsibilities that I didn't have before."

Parting is such sweet sorrow

The friends we made throughout high school will always be special to us. Even if we don't keep in touch or if we go our separate ways and don't see each other often, we will always be with the others in our hearts and minds. Our friends were people that went through the good times and the bad, the growing pains and even our first loves. We will always carry them with us in our memories because memories are forever.

"I know that my friends will stay friends because we have great times together. We are close and understand each other."

Howard Teague

"Friends are great! I think that lots of friends are great, but I also believe that a person should have a best friend. My best friend is someone I can share everything with. My memories will always include all of my friends, but she's someone I won't ever forget."

Christie Starnes

Goodbyes. Seniors form senior circle after the last home game of the season.

We designed our own class ring

Many things began to happen once we became juniors. We had so many things that became available to us. There was a wider variety of expenses, one of which was a class ring. Each year juniors buy class rings as a high school memento. Styles and colors are decisions that cause many headaches to occur. Everyone wants an original

Our prom was very special

Juniors

"I can't wait for the prom," was a thought that ran through many minds over and over again. The excitement and elegance of being able to attend a prom became the most important occasion for many students. Months of planning, buying dresses, renting tuxes, and finding dates went into one single cleaning time. Kori Kaubin and Shannon Melton decided that Eddy Polly needs a good cleaning night that made memories for a life time

'Our cars were our pride, joy'

Cars were thought about constantly. People were known by the type of car they drove, whether it was a fancy sports car or the ole family heap. Everyone had a dream car or a favorite type of car. A few were classics, but more were just something with four wheels that ran.

"My car's not the best but at least I get where I'm going."

We really got motivated

We put a lot of spirit into our class this year. After being slow last year, and not having the spirit that the upperclasses had, we really became motivated this year. As a whole, we were involved with activities and fit into the elite group called the GENERALS.

I think we have more school spirit this year.

'We were better than ever'

Just as the year before had started, so did this year. The hustle and bustle of getting off to a good start on the first day of school made the adrenalin flow through our bodies. For us this year was different from last year. Faces were familiar, and it seemed that we actually belonged. We didn't care about what everyone thought, it was our turn to do some thinking.

"This year it's my turn to pick on freshmen."

Race McDoulett

"Starting school this year wasn't as bad as last year was: all my old friends came back, and I didn't feel alone.

Jennifer Cordell

"I couldn't wait for the year to start, so I could get back to my friends that I had made last year."

Shawnda Werner

'Around USG in a day'

When we came to USG we were ready to take on the world. We thought we could handle anything and everything. That was until we found out what the word "UPPERCLASSMEN" really meant (everyone but us). Although we weren't "UPPERCLASSMEN" we realized that they did treat us pretty well, with some exceptions — of course.

I had a few run ins with "UPPERCLASSMEN," but that was ok because I was really treated quite well.

Nikki Jefferson

I disliked being taped to the pole, but I decided that I would be able to get even in the years to come.

Brian Dragus

I thought that everyone treated me pretty well. I just hope that they keep it up.

Jimmy Driskill

Starting at the top, Freshman class officers were Lisa Tord (president), Bill Hand (vice president), Nikki Jefferson (secretary), Barbara Kessler (treasurer), Jimmy Driskill (reporter), Tracy Hoadgin (sergeant-at-arms).

First-time Howdies. Jimmy Driskill and Denise Stewart were named Mr. and Miss Howdy of the freshman class.

'We took USG by storm'

Our big day had finally come. That day we started high school. We thought "Wow, this is going to be the most exciting time of our lives." We were finally going to belong to a group. The excitement looked up to

"I thought my freshman year would be the worst ever, but once I got here and found new friends I realized that the best was yet to come."

Scott Challis

I came here not knowing what to expect, but I found that it was really exciting."

Chrystal Williams

Cathy Richmond

I thought that my first year at Grant or rather my first day would be confusing and that it would be hard finding all of my classes."

'Friends at USG are forever'

Our first day at USG was total chaos. We were scared and nervous, afraid we would get lost, or afraid we wouldn't fit into the crowd. We found that everything was different, but we made new friends, and those friends will last us a lifetime. People turned out to be very nice, and there were only a few who even mentioned initiation, but really isn't that just all part of the game?

'I didn't think I would ever be able to find my way around, but with the help of a lot of nice people I found everything just fine.'

Heather Childers

'I remember that it wasn't the best day because I got lost quite a bit. After I met new people and became familiar with the building I was more at ease and began to have a lot of fun.

We finally had a social life

After that first week or so, when we finally got into a routine, we began to feel more at home. The more at ease we became, the easier it was to make friends. This really gave a boost to our self-confidence, not to mention our social life.

This is so confusing! Rhonda Weidenman hopes enrollment will ease the social life.

"My social life changed a great deal. I had more people to talk to and to go places with, not to mention more dates!" Lisa Gibbany.

"I wasn't as scared after I made friends. I had been afraid that I might say the wrong thing to the wrong person. Since I have met new people I am just fine. I just knew then that my freshman year would be great!" Angie Martin.

"I wasn't more crazy than I had ever been and I had a lot more fun!" Robert Weeks.

CURRICULUM Explosion

Time spent in class seemed to be time well spent on our futures for many of us, yet some felt school just really wasn't for them. Through attendance each of us gathered information, whether we realized it at the time or not. Our curriculum gave students the opportunity to start building a future for themselves. We met challenges along the way that seemed to be hard to conquer, but we knew we had a job to do, and we worked hard to achieve the grades we wanted. Homework was a part of our lives that always existed. We wanted to do our best, to have pride in ourselves. We gave our all, and were rewarded by good grades.

That's impossible! I must have spoken with Mr. Galt. Watson expects to finish this work in a week's time.

Lesson! Mary Watson's English class is a language arts class.

Eight long semesters! That seemed like an eternity, yet that is what each and every one of us would end up spending in our English classes. Our language was the one class that was the essential tool by which we learned everything else. Our time spent in our language arts class was filled with its share of ups and downs. The terror of hearing Mrs. Fuller say "Rephrase that sentence" is the absolutely overwhelming feeling of receiving a well-deserved A on one of Mr. Watson's essays was shared by all of us brave enough to take the real tough test.

"I like my English class because it helps me learn more of the English language."

SOCIAL STUDIES

"Why doesn't anybody ever talk about our own Ulysses Simpson Grant?"

Shhh . . . Mr. Harold Crosley is about to give us a lesson in secret history.

U.S. history, government, Oklahoma history, World history, sociology, and psychology were designed to make us more interested about our predecessors, our community, and ourselves.

As the requirement for social studies credits increased, many of us found ourselves "stuck" in a class we thought we'd dread, but thanks to our teachers, we found ourselves actually enjoying our classes. We re-lived the days of the "cowboys and Indians" which respectfully influenced our state of Oklahoma.

We celebrated the long hot summer day of July 4, 1776, when our forefathers declared their independence. All in all, we enjoyed learning about our past just as long as we didn't have to live it.

History is important to learn because it teaches us not to make some of the mistakes we've made in the past.

Cheri Turner

"The past is an important part of the US. If studied right, you can learn the future from the past."

Rodd A. Cole

"I feel history helps us in our world today. How else could we learn how our forefathers lived and made our world the way it is today?"

Terry Richard

Once upon a time . . . Robyn Stotzer gives her version of the history of the world.

This is . . . Mr. Harold Crosley points out different parts of the world.

We were curious about ourselves and the world around us. We were the ones who couldn't be satisfied when our questions were answered by... just because... therefore, we took various science courses. During a fire drill, everyone knew who the chemistry students were: they stood in a group, dressed in a lab apron and goggles. We looked forward to the laboratory work which made us feel like certified professionals, yet dreaded the tests that could either make or break our grades. Our science classes were always challenging because we looked forward to them because they were never dull.

Science is offered to teach us about the world around us. I enjoy it as long as it doesn't get too technical.

James Jackson

They want to teach us what is really going on in the world. They want us to know there is a reason for the way things happen. They want us to know what that reason is. I like physics because it's challenging and it is never dull. It may be hard to understand some times, but it's worth the effort.

First things first. Computer students must learn the basics before the fun starts.

Andrew: Andrew Mobley still counts on his fingers.

Many of us were doing well if we made correct change for a $20 bill. We were the ones taking basic math. Some of us were comfortable with postulates, proofs, and equations strung out across the whole chalkboard. We were the ones in geometry and algebra. Those of us who were offered beyond took trigonometry, analytics, and calculus. Fortunately, there was always a willing and able teacher to help us when we needed it which was pretty often.

“I am going to major in computer science. I need as much math in college as I can get. After all, it will be my means of making a living.”

Randy Ray

I plan on becoming a computer engineer and work in the field of robotics. Obviously, many hours of calculus, physics, and electronics will be needed to prepare for this field of work. Everyone needs a basic math background to balance a checkbook, compute a grocery list and even buy a car. Even carpenters need a basic trigonometry background, so that the houses they build will be half-way square.

John Sargent

Math is going to help me in college and the career I've chosen. A lot of math courses enable me to make college math easier.

We were influenced by our teachers and counselors to take some business classes. We were told they were not very hard and would come in handy in the future. But even our typing classes could prove to be the longest and most frustrating hour of our day. Those of us who were very serious about a business career took classes like accounting and data processing which always proved to be a challenge. To many of us the challenge was to increase our speed; for others, it was to acquire the knowledge to establish our own business. But no matter what our goals were, our business classes definitely helped us to achieve them.

I took typing because I figured it would help me with further education after high school."

Lisa Todd

I took a business class because I plan to go to college and major in business management, and I'll need typing skills for future use."

By spending three hours a day with each other we naturally became good friends. Together we laughed and teased around a lot, but we all knew exactly what it would mean for us when we reached the end of the year. We looked forward to going to our classes because it was never the same old routine. Our vocational classes were unlike our academic classes. They allowed us to express ourselves more. Once a job was completed, we could stand back and see a part of a beautiful good thing that we had done.

Vo Tech offered early training. We got more experience and didn't pay nearly what we would at a beauty college.

We were so sure we'd get it done we didn't make a plan at all.

About making clothes, preparing dinner, changing linens, and finishing a house sort of us and a natural instinct very many of us needed to learn the ropes. At times it wasn't easy, but when we looked at something we'd done and realized we'd done it for our own, we had a tremendous feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment. Try something new.

It's a challenge for me because I like my own way and I like to make things.

THE NEW ARTS

"Did she really swallow a fly when she sang?"

In a world where the expression "do your own thing" is heard more and more, we were given the opportunity to do just that in our fine arts classes. The cliché "The sky's the limit" held more meaning for us than ever before. Many of us dreamed of one day accepting an Academy Award or an Olympic Gold Medal, or becoming a twentieth century Amadeus, Mozart, or the next Pavarotti, or even of experiencing the thrill of watching our own works being displayed in an art gallery. Our fine arts classes brought out the best in us and taught us how to express ourselves through our work.

"I like being able to select my own fine art class. The wide variety of classes offered gives me the chance to enroll in something I'm interested in."

In a world that is very health-oriented we couldn't help but want to look like Christie Brinkley or Arnold Schwarzenegger. We wanted to feel good about our bodies so we endured long, strenuous work-outs and learned that good health is a combination of rest, proper eating, and many other things. Many of us violated our diets as well as our conscience by a much needed (?) junk food binge.

Our sympathy goes out to our Drivers Ed teacher who faced the question every time he stepped into the car with a student driver "Will I live through this?" We studied our little yellow manuals and patiently awaited the day we turned 16 and could show off that little piece of plastic with our names on it.

ORGANIZATIONS

Explosion

We, students of US Grant, put great pride into our clubs. We were determined to make our clubs more active and outgoing than ever before. Success came with achievement, and achievement is what we strove for. The activities that we participated in led us to be more responsible young adults. Many of the clubs we were members of gave us a chance to meet new people as we attended conventions and conferences throughout the United States. We were very proud of our accomplishments we made throughout this year. The time we spent helping others through our clubs helped us realize the important things our clubs stand for.

Council strives for spirit, leadership training

Leadership training was not the least important objective of Student council as they planned activities designed to involve all students and to promote school spirit.

In the fall the council hosted the district 8 convention which 12 member schools attended. Also in the fall, the group campaigned for the presidency of the State Student Council Association at the annual meeting in Tulsa.

Council members gave regular reports to fourth hour classes and encouraged students to take part in the community service projects as well as the spirit building projects. Among the community service projects were a can drive for needy families at Thanksgiving, a party for needy children at Christmas time and a school blood drive in the spring.

In addition to sponsoring homecoming activities and dances, StuCo sponsored the Teacher Turkey contest in the fall and TWIRP week in the spring. Also in the spring they again coordinated the carnival at which clubs and organizations raised money.

All three publications, the yearbook, the newspaper, and the literary anthology fought rising costs and personnel problems throughout the year.

Yearbook sales which approached the 700 mark were closed on November 1 with the annual Mystery Assembly which featured a Rose State band as well as the Truthettes, a gospel singing group from Southeast high school. Choir president Shawn Evans also performed.

Monthly newspapers featured work by beginning journalism students and guest writers as well as staff contributions. A number of staff members joined representatives from the yearbook staff in attending the spring convention of the Oklahoma Interscholastic Press Association.

Members of the Writers' Club, under the supervision of Dr. Sarah Fuller and Mrs. Cindy Foote persisted in encouraging students to improve themselves through improving their writing. They contributed to the state anthology as well as the anthology for the school.

In cooperation with the choir and band, drama students presented "Scrooge" at Christmas time, which highlighted the formal performances of drama, speech and stage craft personnel.

In the fall, the drama students gave "No Crime Like the Present" in both a daytime and a nighttime performance. In the Spring, children's plays were presented to elementary students from neighboring schools. During the year, a series of one-act plays were performed by drama students to provide training. Often other classes provided an audience for the actors.

Debate students participated in several contests in the state and took part in the League of Speech and Drama club which had several parties and other social activities.

Officers of the organization were Jeff Cordell, president; Kathy Unsell, senior vice president; Teri McClendon and Scott Gibson, junior vice presidents; Sherr Langston, secretary; Heather St. Hilaire, historian; and Michelle Dexter, chaplain.

Both the jazz band, White Lightning, and the orchestra strengthened and grew from last year. The jazz group designed uniforms of all white with red bands on their hats. The group performed for PTSO Open House and several pep assemblies. To perfect their performances they made tapes which showed them their weak spots.

With a number of symphony-minded members on their hands, the orchestra became very serious about approximating the sounds they heard from the Oklahoma City Symphony when it performed for the school in the fall.

Squads entertain audiences, coordinate routines

Promoting school spirit and providing entertainment for school and parent audiences were the cheerleaders and Pom Pom squad who coordinated many of their routines.

Cheerleaders, under the sponsorship of Miss Lois Sughrue attended all football games, basketball games, and wrestling matches. Head cheerleader was Traci Canon. The squad started their year last summer by attending clinic at the University of Oklahoma. They later competed in Tulsa and at Crossroads Mall. They spent countless hours preparing and practicing routines.

Pom Poms, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Connie Ellis, received the Pom Pom trophy, the sweepstakes trophy and the spirit stick at summer camp at Oklahoma University where they were named the super star squad. At the Oklahoma State Clinic the girls won a finalist plaque. The pom poms, as well as the cheerleaders, performed for most sporting events.

SCHOOL LIFE

Explosion

Fun and games went along with school. The times with friends, just doing our own things fit in to our school social life. We laughed and loved and lived what we considered exciting lives. Together we gained trust in each other and began to rely on friends. Gooing around was great, but so were the serious, memorable times that touched each heart and life. Giving our time to ourselves was as important as giving time to studies and work. We needed a time to relax and live our school life out and enjoy being young.

habit to break

"I asked you not to eat in class."

But Mr. Watson, I didn't have breakfast, and I need a coke and a candy bar in the morning to get me going.

Sound familiar? Of course, we hardly had time to eat before we left for school so we stopped at a Seven Eleven or fed quarters into the candy machine before class. There were times when we weren't even hungry, but it was a habit.

Chocolate gave some of us energy. It seemed to wake us up in the morning, give us spark, keep our eyes open, and that's what we needed to sit through six hours of classes. It didn't always make sense, but we did it, out of habit. We did things all the time that we never thought twice about.

Many times our habits got in the way. We all did stupid little things that annoyed people.

The girl who twirled her hair around her finger, the boy who almost ate his hand off biting his fingernails before a test, or a bunch of gossip girls sitting around talking about half of the school.

We may have driven everyone around us crazy, but we got out of high school okay, and that was what we were aiming for.

Tiny, Tiny, Gertrude Gray doesn't even worry about her addiction to chocolate and cokes.

MY HERO

We all had our heroes, someone we looked up to and admired in some way. Many of us probably never thought about having a hero. But we all believed in someone. We believed in a dream.

For some of us, super stars were the ones we looked up to. Madonna, Eddie Murphy, people who were famous. We looked at all their talent, and beauty and we wanted to be like them. We wanted to have the ability to achieve what they had achieved. It was a dream to be what they were. Rich and Famous.

All of our heroes weren't stars or famous folk. Sometimes we thought of the people we saw every day as heroes. A teacher who had taught us all they knew about the subject and yet invited us to be his or her friend. A friend who had everything going for him and who was our friend no matter what. A parent who beat the odds and made something out of himself. These were the people whom we looked up to, yet we could relate to them.

They had something we wanted. No, all of them weren't rich and famous, but they were heroes.

In everyone's life there will always be a hero, whether it be a movie star or a high school teacher. We will always look up to someone. Sometimes we will probably look up to the wrong one, and we could hurt ourselves. Heroes are great, they have everything. But is it good for us to always compare ourselves to them? Maybe, if we tried, we could make heroes out of us.

"My hero is James Bond, 007. He does everything right; he has all kinds of gadgets to play with. The main reason I admire him is that he always gets the gorgeous women!"

LIVING DANGEROUSLY

We were a risky group. Sometimes a little too risky. We would often be seen sneaking out of class to get a coke, stealing the flowers off a table at a restaurant or even getting out of the car we were in to run and get in our friend's who was behind us at a stoplight. We were always having to get back from lunch on time, so we risked our lives depending on whom we rode with.

Our parents and teachers probably thought we were crazy for climbing up on the tallest ladder we could find just to put a new light bulb in. Some called it dedicated, really it was daring. We were daring. More daring than any age group, we didn't think of the consequences; we just knew what we were going to do and we did it.

We lived for the moment. We weren't always worrying about what was going to happen. We thought about now and what we were doing. We were always doing something that we thought no one else would do. Come to find out, there was always someone around who could better do what we could do. We'd do something else trying to get everyone to notice us. Half the time we were all so busy trying to get someone to notice us we never noticed each other.

It didn't really matter who noticed because we lived dangerously by nature. We were teenagers. That was our job! And we had a fun time doing it.

"Last summer at New York, I decided to get my hair cut. I wasn't sure how to get it cut. So I just went in to the weird salon and told them to cut it however they wanted."

PRIZED POSSESSIONS

An old teddy bear, a gold necklace, a brand new truck, and a stereo all have one thing in common. They all mean something very special to someone. To some of us material things often meant as much, if not more, than friendships and families. Was this wrong? Was it wrong for teenagers to depend so much on possessions?

We didn't depend on these possessions as much as others thought. Yes material things were the reasons most of us had jobs. We worked all week for money to pay car payments, or to buy new clothes. We were always pressured into styles. Everyone was trying to dress in the latest styles. Our clothes were important. The car we drove was important also. Some of us had brand new cars, while others had our older sister or brother's hand-me-down.

Often there were things of sentimental value. A girl who wore one necklace everywhere she went, every day. The necklace might have been a family heirloom, or have been given to her by an old boyfriend. Whatever the reason, it was special. It had value in that girl's life.

We all had something that we would call a prized possession. Everyone's was different and was prized for different reasons. We all had things we felt we could not live without. But the question still stood. Was it all right for us to put so much trust in something that would not last? It was all right for us, because we would only be a high school student once. Our possessions would not last a lifetime; they just kept our attention for a while. But the memories we made would last forever.

CHOW DOWN

Two cheeseburgers, large fries and a large coke. This was a basic meal for us as high school students. Because we were always busy, running from school to the library to work and home to get ready for a date, fast food fit in our daily schedule.

Because we were always busy, we hardly ever ate a decent meal. Mom may have cooked every night, but we were only there one time and that was for fifteen minutes. Our parents tried and tried to get us to sit down and eat, but we didn't have time; there was so much to do. Going from practice to work, eating a candy bar on the way, trying to drive to school in the morning while eating a piece of toast. Mom shoved in our hand as she kissed us on the cheek.

Sometimes what we ate didn't matter that much. When we hadn't eaten since the night before at 6 p.m., anything sounded good. Our stomach would be growling for the first four hours, and when 11:45 finally came we dashed out to our cars to try to break the record of getting to McDonald's the fastest.

When we did have time to sit down and eat, it was a special time for us. We usually ate with people we loved, friends, family. To some of us, those times when we did get to be with our family and friends became special. Sharing pizza with our best friend, talking about boyfriend problems, listening to Dad tell the family about his new promotion and how the whole family's allowance would be increased. Eating served as a time when we got to know about our friends and family.

LOVE IS...

Webster defines the word love as an affection based on admiration. For us as high school students, love was a sense of belonging. We all wanted to love and to be loved. We didn't only see love in a boy carrying a girl's books down the hall. Love was staying every day after school for play practice, driving our car around town, even playing with our favorite pet for hours.

Some of us loved to dribble a basketball down the court, while others of us loved to dance till we were sweating, paint a canvas, or enlighten others' ears with our voice. Our talents were something we loved to share with others. Quite often we would be seen staying after school for cheerleading or baseball practice. We were called crazy, but those who called us that didn't understand that we were in love with what we were doing, and sometimes we didn't care what else suffered because of it.

Because we were young and naive, we fell in and out of love a thousand times. Every experience was new and different and always seemed better than the one before. We liked being loved and the feeling we got when we told someone we were in love. Many times we tried love because we wanted to belong. We always made it through our "teen-age love affairs" and each one helped us in special ways.

Love was often a word we used too easily. Sometimes it didn't mean as much as it should. But when we really loved something or someone, we would do anything to keep that feeling forever.

"Love is being dedicated to someone, being proud of them and trusting them no matter what."

Dinah Waggoner

a Boom Chick a Boom

"I said A Boom Chicka Boom. I said A Boom-Chicka Rocka Chicka Rocka Chicka Boom. Ah huh. Ah huh. One more time, Generals' style."

No, this isn't a misprint, this is one of the many cheers that were heard at pep assemblies, ball games and sometimes even as we were walking down the hall. We were a pretty spirited group. Well, some of us were. Those who would go to every football game no matter what the weather or stay until the last second to kick off the clock even if our team was losing 60-14.

Some of the funniest times we had were at football or basketball games. It was a time for all of us to get together and goof off. While we were goofing off, we yelled for our team. We always knew who was shooting a free throw or who was getting carried off the field on a stretcher. Those athletes out there were our friends, and we were proud of them. We didn't care if we had a cold the morning after a football game or if we couldn't talk because we yelled so loud.

People outside of our school often said our school was boring and that we had no school spirit. We knew better. We knew that school spirit was only yelling at basketball games or supporting the cheerleaders out on the field. School spirit was a feeling. It was being proud of our school no matter what. So what if we didn't have the most spirited student body? There was a feeling among us. That feeling was pride.

"Cheerleaders aren't the only ones who are supposed to have spirit. They are there to lead the rest of us in spirit. The entire student body should join in. School spirit can be fun."

LADIES of the 80's

We read it in history books but we still found it hard to believe. Women who could not speak until they were spoken to or whose job was to feed the children and take care of the house. Women who had no rights. It was as though those women lived in a different world. In the world of US Grant women had rights. Even though we were from the ages of 3 to 18 women or girls had rights.

Do you trust me? Shannon Metten agrees. And because she was not one who had no rights.

During the seventies a girl who drove a truck was considered weird. Not in 1986! Girls were driving trucks and anything else they wanted to. Girls did almost anything boys did.

We may have just been teenagers, but equal rights were evident in our school. Girls as well as boys had jobs to do, and each had to do them. Usually, we treated everyone as equals. We treated people how we expected to be treated.

Equal rights weren't always evident in our lives. But we pected to be treated

Equal rights weren't always evident in our lives. But we usually tried to respect each other and each one's ideas. Respect was important to us.

people play

"It doesn't matter if you win or lose; it's how you play the game." This is a famous quote, but is it true? Well, most of the time winning was on our mind. How we played the game mattered, but winning, that was the big deal.

We were one competitive bunch of kids. Winning meant everything to some of us. We played games all the time. Touch football, one on one basketball, and hacky sack were just a few of the games the boys would play any chance they got. In the rain, snow or heat, we played.

We played around all the time. In class we would play jokes on each other. At restaurants we played, everywhere we felt we had to have fun. Teachers probably went crazy because of us. Our parents probably wanted to throw us out of the house at times. Our little games often got us in trouble.

Some of us poured our allowance into video game after video game. We ran out of money, but it didn't matter. We were having fun. We would go to any extreme to have fun, even if it meant spending all our money.

School was fun, but mainly because we made it that way. The games we played added a little spice to our everyday routine.

Thrill of a Lifetime

It was quite a day. The excitement had been building for months, ever since we found out who the candidates would be. Dresses had to be picked out, tuxedos had to be sized. Everything had to be perfect. We had waited for this day for a long time, yet we feared what the outcome might be.

There wasn't a word in the English language to describe the way we felt. The butterflies in our stomachs were turning into 747's. We were so nervous, yet it was one of the happiest moments in our life.

The underclassmen looked at the candidates and dreamed about the time when they would become seniors and would be eligible to be candidates for General and his Lady.

A very high point in our high school years was the many coronations. It was exciting for everyone. Even the audience was in suspense waiting for the results. When the results came and the names were announced, applause was heard all around. The smiles of the winners were unbelievable. Never did they look so handsome or so beautiful. It was one of the best days at Grant. It was almost impossible to describe the way we felt. It was the "Thrill of a Lifetime."

"The happiest moment in my life was when my name was announced as homecoming queen."

Jammy Smith

PERFECT choice

The ballots were in and counted. Who would be our Queen? It was a big decision and a lot had to be thought about before each vote. Every girl deserved the honor but only one would get her name called on the speaker.

It was quite an honor to be chosen as homecoming queen. Being a part of the homecoming court was great. One girl was chosen from each class and those girls that were chosen felt special to be representing their class.

The people that were chosen as candidates were thrilled to know they were in the homecoming coronation.

This coronation was the biggest of all times. Being in the coronation would be splendid, walking down the aisle as the names were being called and hearing our fellow peers, shout, whistle, and applaud as we appeared on stage. It would seem as if we were famous stars with a lot of fans cheering us on to the victory. But we all walked down the aisles and had our names called. There was only one being honored: The winner, the perfect choice.

Basketball queen candidates

SPORTS

Explosion

Once again our sports activities made the year exciting. The thrill and action left us with spirit from game to game. Whether or not we won or lost we cheered for our team all the way to the end. Sports gave many people a chance to unwind and forget about everything except concentrating on what they would have to do to improve themselves or win the game. All the team members gave a little of themselves to make our school athletic program the best possible

Gridsters pull out 3-7-0 season against strong opponents

Fifth year head football coach Mike Smith pulled out a 3-7-0 season. The General schedule consisted of many strong teams in the 1985 season.

The season started slow as the squad lost their opening game on September 5 to the Northeast Vikings 43-0. Then the Generals snapped back to pull off an upset on the rain soaked Douglass Trojan field, 13-7. The Generals went on through the half way point in the season, losing the next two games to Yukon and John Marshall after which they arose to the festive homecoming game against

Northwest Classen. The squad put the Knights away 27-6. The following week the Generals traveled to Norman to face a defensive battle, which they lost, 17-0

"We had great leadership this year, and I think we were a lot bigger and better organized than last year."
Kevin Smith

In their next bout they were edged out by the Southeast Spartans 5-10

The Generals drove Capitol Hill 15-30 in the first of the three district playoff games, after which the squad traveled to Duncan for the second district playoff game, which they lost 14-6. In the final game of the regular season and the third district game, the Generals succumbed to Western Heights 14-6. Over all the Generals placed third in the district

Take him down Jeff Morrison takes down a opponent.

Countering Boone counters a move with a head chopper.

Victory Coach Smith acknowledges David Herold's victory.

Making points Boone scores a 2-point move.

Matmen win all-city for second year in spite of ineligibilities

In spite of being plagued by ineligible players all season, the wrestlers were all-city champs for the second consecutive year. Freshman wrestler Ryan Walkabout projected that the team again will take first place in all-city next year.

In the first meet of the year the Generals almost had a shut out against the Northwest Knights. Dion Leah, 108; Seah Leah, 123; Bobby Hill, 115; Jeff Marshall, 141; Ryan Walkabout, 148; and Bill Self, heavyweight, all won their matches by wide margins.

Coaches Mr. Mike Smith and Mr. Tony Franklin led the team to a third place at the Choctaw festival. Also at the festival, in addition to Choctaw and US Grant were Harrah and McCloud. The Generals beat McCloud in the first match of the festival

In All-City competition the Generals had six city champions, and the others were runners-up. Champions were Dion Leah, 101; Bobby Hill, 115; Seah Leah,

"I feel we are leading the 3A conference with talent, but unfortunately our record doesn't show it." Bobby Hill

123, Mark Horn, 130; Jeff Marshall, 141; and Marvin Brown, 178. Runners-up were Billy Baird, 108; Keith Morales, 168; Bill Self, heavyweight.

At the Carl Albert tournament Bobby Hill took second in his televised bout with his Harrah opponent

In the Western Heights tournament a majority of the team members fell victim to a bout with the flu which "greatly hampered" the team's performance, according to Bill Self, junior wrestler.

Brown, Honn go to state after placing fourth, second

Emerging triumphant from regional competition were Mark Honn, 130; and Marvin Brown, 178; who then represented the Generals in state competition. Brown placed fourth in regionals, and Honn placed second.

Prominent among wrestlers were victory haircuts, a fad which was started by Sean Lea, and followed by Dion Lea, Bobby Hill, and Randy Neugebauer. Mark Honn was the last one to succumb to a barber's shears. Although they enjoyed the victory locks, they admitted that they were "somewhat eager" for their hair to grow out.

Wrestlers were grateful for their "devoted" matmaids who served the team all year by sweeping and mopping the mats and keeping water "handy at all times," explained Bill Self, junior heavyweight. "They also provided significant moral support while we were battling it out on the mats," Self elaborated.

Matmaids were Lori Swidler and Donna Craig, seniors; Jenni Drail and

Cager team leaders evaluate 12-11 record, gain experience

"In spurts we were good. We functioned as a team, but too much of the time we just didn't click as a team," evaluated Eddie Polly, junior guard, as he explained the 12-11 record of the varsity cager squad this season.

"At the beginning of the year we lacked defense, and by the time we really got our defense put together, we didn't have our offense," analyzed Byron Jones, junior forward.

"I think we were selfish. We wouldn't give each other the ball. We wouldn't listen. We were really headaches to the coach," added Clayton Moore, junior forward, who also felt "We just didn't really have that crucial team leader that we needed."

"We didn't block out very well," said Michael Dunn, junior forward. "We were really short, too, although that is not really an excuse; we had a lot of quickness that we just didn't utilize," he added.

"Team work is the key to making a team good."
Thomas Taylor

Team members this year predicted a strong season next year because so many experienced players will return. "We had a rough year this year which has given us good experience. As four returning starters, we are determined to go to state next year," said Eddie Polly.

Cager teams have convictions of optimism for next year

Although the varsity, junior varsity, and freshman teams were disappointed in their overall performances, they all have convictions of optimism for next year.

Highlight of the varsity season was the John Marshall game which the Generals won 64-56 on the Bears' court. "That was the game which showed real team effort from everyone," said Scott VanHorn, senior guard.

"The Millwood game was our best defensive game; we won 55-49 by playing team defense," explained Byron Jones.

Leading scorer for the season was Byron Jones with an average of 18.7 per game. He was followed by Clayton Moore with 16.5 per game.

Coach Mike Nero led the junior varsity squad to a 6-10 record.

Leading scorer for the junior varsity squad was Thomas Taylor who averaged 20.0 points per game. Vincent Martin was the second highest scorer with a 16.1 average. "The best games we played were against Northeast and Douglass," explained Vincent Martin, freshman guard.

With Cal Holloway as their coach, the freshman cagers got off to a slow start, "but finished much stronger," said Steve Scott, freshman guard. The squad finished with a 6-6 record. Scott said that the important thing about the season was "we learned a lot even when we lost."

Derrick Kiel, freshman forward, said,

"Our best game had to be against Carl Albert, because they had a big guy they were proud of, and although we didn't have a big guy, we came out on top."

Lady cagers chalk up 1-22 season, but refuse to quit

The Lady Generals ended their season with a record of 1-22. Under the leadership of Coach Larry Millhouse, the girls won their game against Northwest Classen in the pre-season tournament, by a score of 60-40. The season didn't go as well as they had hoped, "but that didn't stop the hard work and determination that they put into each game," said Coach Millhouse.

The starters were Marina Brown, Nina Gross, Tanita Atkins, forwards; and Shannon Levesey, Rita Shelton, and Lesh Leggett, guards. High scorer for the team this year was Marina Brown. She had an average of 11.6 points per game. Mr. Larry Millhouse commented about the team, "The girls' basketball team feels that if they would have had supporters attending their games, they would have had a better season. Having people who care at the games, if they win, helps to build team morale."

"Our team didn't get off to a very good start, but the experience in high school sports and the practice are good training for next year," Steve Scott

"The cheerleaders were not as supportive towards the girls as they were the boys, nor were the students or faculty explained Megan Parks. Coach Millhouse commented that he was "optimistic for the future." He stated that instead of starting the seniors in every game, he gave some underclassmen the chance to get experience that would prove to be valuable for next year's team.

Baseballers return six lettermen after going to playoffs in '85

In the 1984-85 season, the Generals started off strong by taking a doubleheader from Millwood by scores of 6-0 and 5-0. The Generals also defeated John Marshall by a score of 9-0, and won fifth place in the Guthrie tournament by defeating Mustang, 8-7.

The Generals won the regional tournament at Woodson Park. In the first round the Generals defeated the Capitol Hill Redskins by a score of 10-1. In the second round the Generals defeated the Southeast Spartans by a score of 12 to 1. During the finals the Generals clinched the regional tournament by defeating the Capitol Hill Redskins by a score of 4 to 3. By winning the regional tournament the Generals advanced to the State playoffs that were held in Tulsa. The Generals were defeated in their first game by a score of 3-2, and ended their winning season with a record of 29 wins and 5 losses.

"This year's team has a lot of talent, and if we put our minds to it, we can go to the state playoff." — David Harris

This year's team had six returning starters: Paul Vail at catcher and pitcher; Todd Wallingford at shortstop; Tommy Monday at third base; David Harris at first base and designated hitter; Keith Morales provided strength at pitcher and left field. Jay Singley, a transfer from another school, was a strong addition to the pitching staff.

The General team started practice this year in February and began strict practice in March. The Generals worked out early under Coach Skip Metheny. The practice and workout gave the Generals an early start to get ready for the oncoming season.

Softball team wins All-city championship for eighth year

For the eighth consecutive year the softball team won the All-City championship after defeating Southeast in the run-offs at Woodson Park.

This year the team will lose seniors Lesli Leggett, Shannon Levesey, Traci Canon, and Pam Martin.

In the 1985 season Shannon made the first home run for the year. She made a total of twelve homeruns. Lesli and Pam led in extra base hits with eight each.

As a team the Generals scored 144 runs, and their opponents collectively scored 36.

In the last two years, the Lady Generals lost only one game — to Capitol Hill 7-6 early in the season, but later the Generals came back to run rule the Redskins 10-6.

In the All-City competition, the Generals run-ruled every opponent except Southeast in the finals.

This spring the team started practice in late March to prepare for district.

Tennis, golf teams skip fall tournaments, prepare for spring

Last fall, the tennis teams nor the golf team participated in fall tournaments.

Coached by Mr. Ron Cable and Mrs. Vicky Noakes, the boys' and girls' tennis teams practiced in the fall. The girls organized the experienced players to instruct the newcomers.

This spring the boys' tennis team will return Robert Gilkes, Stan Prokarym, Ron Cable, Patrick Hagerman, John Sargent, and Damen Blumenthal.

The girls' tennis team worked on serves, volleying, and backhand strokes for two hours every day in the fall.

This spring the returners are expected to be Tamiko Blakely, Kathy Tilson, Kelli Miller, Yumiko Hurst, Kim Lassiter, Jean Ann Coslow, and Tish Kolke. Newcomers to the team are Erica Anderson, Carol Bell, Jennie Griffith, Missy McCoy, Kelli Yohey, Traci McKnight,

"We will have a strong chance because other city schools lost their number one players." Stan Prokarym

Crystal Rodger, Nikki Jefferson, Jennifer Cable, and Penny Jones. Mrs. Noakes is expecting Melissa McCoy, a newcomer, to be "a valuable player."

Coach Gary Gleaves encouraged the team to practice all year although the team itself did not begin practice until February. Coach Gleaves set up a net in the wood shop for team members to practice during cold weather.

For the first time in recent years, the team had females, Kari Clessen and Troyann Yarena, both freshmen. Newcomers to the team were Brian Dragus, Bobby Boyanton, Greg Porter, Todd Oden, Paul Dutton, David Elrod and Chuck Dickson and Allen Pierce. Returners were Channon Motherall, Jimmy Porter, Jeff Bays, Brad Langley, and Johnny Pomeroy.

Last year the golf team placed eighth in state competition.

Track teams start practice late; cross country re-builds

Members of the track teams were anticipating a productive showing this spring after an admittedly late practice season, and cross country had a rebuilding year last fall under new head coach, Mr. Tom Hutchinson.

Robert Daniels, runner of the 220- and 100-yard dash, explained that the boys' track team sometimes goes up against teams that start practicing as much as two months before the Generals start. Robert said that because Coach James Thatcher is the basketball coach and he has no support in track, it is impossible for the track team to get in shape. He said that tournaments help get the team in shape.

In spite of the obstacles, the track teams planned to have strong representation in long jumps and the 220- and 100-yard dash. They also were hoping to compete in the 440 relay, 880

"I'm on the teams because I wanted to get in shape for swimming. I love it too."
Shelly Trombly

relay, 440 run, 880 run, 2 mile run, the high jump, the shot put, and the discus.

Coach for the girls' track team was again Mrs. Connie Ellis who was expecting Carlos Martin to excel in the 220, 440, and 880 relays. Jama Burns will lead the squad in the high jump. Donna Campbell will lead in the hurdles, and Tiffany Taft will compete in the relays.

In its rebuilding year, the cross country squad consisted of four or five runners last fall. Participants in the All-City meet which was two miles long, included letterwomen Sereta Robinson, Shelly Trombly, and Annie Eckroat. Shelly and Sereta ran the 2-mile in 9 minutes, 23 seconds, and Annie ran it in 15 minutes, 45 seconds.

Backward perfection. Larry Baker executes the reverse with precision.

Breast stroke expert. Jennifer Curlei makes up for many seconds when it's her turn.

Swimmers outnumbered in competition all season

With only nine or ten regular swimmers, the swim team was greatly outnumbered in all of its competition this season, according to Mr. Tom Hutchinson, coach.

Coach Hutchinson thought that although the team did not win any of its meets this season, they gained "valuable experience which will be in evidence in the young team next season when most of the lettermen will return."

Swimmers agreed that their closest and "most impressive" meet was with the John Marshall Bears which the Bears won by scores of 36-19 for the boys and 42-18 for the girls.

In All-City competition at Douglass, six swimmers placed in their events. Tonya Olvera placed sixth in the 500-freestyle and fifth in the 100-breaststroke; Sereta Roberson placed fifth in the freestyle; Keith Chamblee placed fifth in the 100-breaststroke and fifth in the 50-freestyle; Shelly Trombley placed fifth in the 100 backstroke; Dave Birkheimer placed fifth in the 500-freestyle and sixth in the 50-freestyle; and James Wilde placed fifth in the 100-backstroke.

"Because we were so few in number, we became extremely tired in competition; we had absolutely no relief," explained Keith Chamblee.

"We were really fair swimmers. It isn't that we were weak in our events at all. There were just too few of us," agreed Jennifer Cordell.

"Winning is not everything. The important thing is that we had a lot of fun, and we are going to do better next year," prophesied Sereta Roberson.

Erica Anderson said, "It was really a lot of hard work the way we practiced after school at the Y, but it was worth all of it, although our scores do not convey our true accomplishments."

Together again. The team has been back together.

Explosion

Happy times brought smiles to our faces. The fun times we shared with our friends gave us a chance to laugh and cut up and be ourselves. The laughter that we exposed to others set off an explosion within each of us that gave us a better outlook on the fun things we got out of life. We will never forget that great explosion of laughter that occurred in 1985-86.

A change of face. Bobby Jones waits for Monique Hinkle.

A good one. Lori Allen just heard the Room for one More? Being crowded only added to the merriment.

What did you say? Monica Rodriguez tries to hear something she doesn't believe anyway.

Voices roared as we scattered into the gym for pep assemblies. The excitement and spirit exploded when chants and cheers were performed. The spirit that arose gave a vibrant feeling to all of us; however, our spirit didn't stop at assemblies; it was evident throughout sports activities. Spirit was also displayed by participating in student council activities, fund-raisers, and clubs and organizations.

Engrossed! The game was all in a row. The game was all in a row. The game was all in a row.

School Day Memories

We have met strangers among strangers searching for meaning through people and experiences.
I cannot predict what will become of us.
I only know what happens . . . will because we have shared ourselves.
We can only give to each other what we need most — love, shaping tomorrow's world and yesterday's memories.

Our friendship will not be erased by the passage of time.
You are a chapter in my life never to be experienced again.
I can see in you the strength of mankind.
the beauty of nature, and the love of God

Today will be a pleasant memory — tomorrow, because we have cared enough to give the only thing we have — ourselves
We are gathered here today to form a unit, to make a stronger and better tomorrow.

GENERAL EXPLOSION

PAGE THREE

The year 1986 gave most of us an outlook on life we had never seen before. For some, more years would be spent in school. For others, a new explosion in life will turn everything around. College, all our jobs and responsibilities are just a few things that will jolt our easy-going routine. As we go through life and look back on our school days, we will have a better look at the General Explosion that changes
